your guidelines

Prior to the day of your semen collection, we recommend a period of abstinence (i.e. no ejaculation) of at least three days, but not more than five days. Prior to semen collection please make sure your hands and penis are clean and free of lubricants, powders, soaps, or other foreign materials, since these items may be toxic to sperm.

If you are collecting the specimen at home and bringing it to the lab:

The sample must arrive at the laboratory no more than ONE HOUR after it is produced. Failure to do so may affect results. When transporting the sample, keep the cup close to your body in an upright position. Have all paperwork completed upon arrival at the laboratory. The person dropping off the sample must provide a photo ID for confirmation of identity. Conception Laboratories will never accept a sample that is not clearly identified, appropriately labeled and reliably verified.

If you will be collecting the sample on site at our lab:

You will be provided a clean, private collection room. If you require a lubricant, please notify the technician and he will provide you with one. After collection, tighten the lid of the specimen cup snugly and notify the technician who will review the paperwork with you before you depart. If you are unable to collect a specimen for any reason, please notify the technician, and he will review alternative means of collection.

Within 2-3 business days of your test, we will notify you of your results; in addition, with your approval, we will also release results to your partner and/or referring physician. Simply specify to whom you would like your results released, and provide exact mailing, fax, or phone contact information.
